SFU is not requiring proof of vaccination to return to campus as many US institutions and Seneca College, Ont., are requiring. SFU is also not requiring many non-pharmaceutical interventions (e.g., mandatory masking), and limited ventilation upgrades have been made. Delta is currently leading to rapid case growth & a dangerous new wave in other jurisdictions, and there is no reason to believe that Delta will behave differently in BC. With this in mind, how does SFU plan to ensure the health and safety of students (and their families)? Why not adopt the precautionary principle and maintain mandatory indoor masking, physical distancing, and reduced class sizes with hybrid learning options?

- Increase in number of cases in the province and PHO confirms that less than 5% are among unvaccinated individuals (this is what Catherine says, to what she learned from B.Henry -- need to confirm this point)
- Classroom settings as not principle setting to cause transmission (this is a lie, schools severely underreported cases)
- "Classroom setting was proven to be pretty safe" - Catherine (false, high school students within Surrey had so many outbreaks).
- Masking is an interesting thing to think about, mandatory masks may be reimplemented in the future

What will students without vaccines or vaccines not recognized by the province do?

- Vaccines are free in B.C.
- Can use CARES program

The AQ hallways outside C9001 are always packed with thousands of people during class change, and there's barely 2 cm between people and certainly not 2 metres.

How will you keep us safe in these crowded spaces?

- Fewer larger classes
- "Think differently about the time between classes"
 - Profs keep us late
 - But there is encouragement to let students out early

Bus Routes and adjustment for transit and parking on campus

- Some additional parking on campus (only temporary)
- Need more routes

TA's: Remote teaching and office hours

- It's up to individual folks to disclose their concerns, it's already been decided whether courses are remote or in-person
- Have to go through "the law" to receive accommodations

SFU's plan is based in hope and is SFU actually prepared for an outbreak?

- Based on public health information, going to stick to the science
- Worried about upcoming variants

Are professors mandated to implement a hybrid if a student cannot make it to campus for whatever reason? <ul style="list-style-type: none">● No Racialized students have expressed in large numbers that they are nervous about returning to campus for many reasons, one of which is facing increased racism (macro and micro) in person again.
