6. PRESENTATION

6.1 Orientation in Review

PRESENTED BY: VP Internal and Organizational Development

ATTACHMENTS:

- VP Internal presented and provided everyone with a brief overview about the Council Orientation that happened earlier this month.
- There were five days of the orientation, during day one they covered decolonization 101 and legal responsibilities.
- It was the very first hybrid model orientation under the new governance model and it ended up with good in-person turnout.
- Day 2 consisted of employer responsibilities and JEDI principals.
- Day 3 consisted of Governance 101 and Robert's Rules of Order.
- Day 4 consisted of student care presentation which had lot of engagement, they had a professor present on survey outreach, and then they had highway of tears screening.
- The last day they went over BN and staff support, advocacy & campaigning, and bonding time.
- They expressed that some of the reoccurring concerns throughout the orientation were the lagging Wi-Fi, last-minute rescheduling including guest speaker cancelling at the last moment, and engagement for online attendees.

6.2 No Cops on Campus Presentation and Q&A Period

PRESENTED BY: Director of Engagement at SFPIRG "Chantelle" and Ciara (No Cops on Campus)

ATTACHMENTS:

- Chantelle and Ciara presented on the issue of No Cops on Campus emphasising community safety and the well being of campus. They mentioned that they are here to bring forward the issue of policing and security at SFU.

- Ciara expressed that the RCMP have had the history of white supremacist and colonial violence in Canada having being initiating to clearing the indigenous land of people in order to make the way for white settlement. They mentioned that this is not just a historic issue, as the RCMP and the hired security continue to colonize Indigenous land and punish land defenders on behalf of, and at the request of the Canadian Government and industry, they continue to overpower black brown and disabled People's members of the LGBTQ'S community members, plus other communities and low income and houseless people.
- There are occurrences also happening at a larger societal scale, including the murder of George Floyd, John Tell Moore, Brianna Taylor, and so many others. Violence against BIPOG folks has been met with large-scale social pushback from defund the police and black lives, matter movements worldwide.
- So this is not only an out there issue from SFU founding in 1965, the administration has relied on tactics and processes to suppress student protest and promote a cultural of colonial and white supremacist security on campus. As a campus community, they have seen this and expressed in a variety of ways from black, brown, and indigenous students being followed by security for simply being on campus, to security responding inappropriately and harmfully to survivors of sexualized violence, and to the violent arrest of a black alumnus in December of 2020.
- At other universities across the province police are harming students in their response to wellness requests, which is something that they saw when RCMP response to a call concern regarding a female students state of mental health and she was dragged by her hair from the building.
- Security is also used to suppress students and labor activism, intimidating particularly international students when they stand up for their rights.
- So even prior to the hinge moment that was mentioned, which is the violent arrest of the of black alumni back in December of 2020, students

- and workers were beginning to call out and take action about police presence and security harms on campus.
- So they saw following the murder of George Floyd in May of 2020, and the public statements that the University and then the President released at that time about their commitment to stand in solidarity with anti-black races against anti-black racism. But the SFU community was pushing for to be real tangible action taken by the institution. So they called for more than statements and words without tangible actions attached to them; and at that time even the universities own equity, diversity, and inclusion committed committee rejected the statements made by the institution and similarly called for tangible action to address anti-black racism on Campus.
 - So they began with them like general members of the of the community, pushing for a number of things, including getting RCMP recruitment off-campus, and calling for different approaches to safety, especially for and to be led by black and indigenous community members.
 - However, in December, which was when there was the violent arrest of a community member occurred. A former SFU student on campus, when he was the keynote speaker for the SPRY memorial lecture in 2020 called out SFU on inviting a black man who is a very vocal abolitionist to come and speak when they had literally just arrested a black community member quite violently on campus.
 - So then, in December of 2020 until March, the SFSS at that time, as well as many other student groups and labor groups, condemned the incident, speaking up on racial profiling. There were also a number of media releases made by a number of meetings with the administration which all led to the Mackay report, which was an external review of what it was that led up to that very public violent protest in December.
 - And this again was rejected by student groups and labor organizers on campus who drew attention to the fact that how it was that the call came to be escalated from security to the RCMP was not even a part of that process that that external review. Then in April of 2020, after regular community push back, the institution formed a safety committee which former members of the SFSS as well as many community members were a part of. But, the students who were a part of that committee, have since felt really betrayed. The committee that they stepped into, continue to keep very important aspects of this conversation about safety on campus hidden like the fact about full Mackay report, how it was that calls become escalated, and the contracts with the security companies. All of this stuff was much hidden from students who were participating, and also the terms of reference of that committee shifted drastically over the course of its time, going from a committee that was going to address harm faced by students on campus to a committee that was basically about how we consult. They were basically consulted about how to consult on campus, and a lot of students left that group feeling really burnt out and exhausted by the institutional processes.

- Building on the work that student activists have been doing over the years at SFU, in the summer of 2021 SFPIRG ran a Tran sportive Justice Summer Camp series that brought together students and community organizers who were doing this work to share with students interested in learning more about worlds without police.
- Following that series and connecting with the work that was being done a group of students and staff formed a community collective called No Cops on Campus, which aims to eliminate policing and security presence as it currently exists.
- The name “No cops on campus” speaks to our aspirations for a campus and a larger societal and societal environment that does not rely on violent institutions for community safety. The futures that we are advocating for are not a lack of policing, but rather the presence of strong communities expressed through mutual aid, pure support, networks and ongoing education and training. These are alternatives that reject tactics of surveillance, violence, and social control which are used by policing and security systems, while simultaneously they want to work towards building futures where there is a less violent crime that we need to respond to. They are aware that this goal is going to require very many intentional steps, and the first steps in our work in harm reduction. They want to push the University towards policies and practices that minimize the harm experienced by marginalized community members at SFU.

- This all does not mean that they hate police officers necessarily or think that all police officers are bad people. But, they recognize that this is actually a structural issue, not an individual issue. So, when organizations declare, for instance, a climate crisis, and divestment from fossil fuels, or take action towards climate change, those organizations are not condemning workers involved in the industry and activities that affect climate change. They are making a statement and taking action against a larger structural problem that harms people and their futures.
- So in the case of endorsing or working on a campaign like “no cops on campus” means that we, as a collective are taking a stand against a policing and security structure, ideology, and practice that historically and contemporarily causes harm to people's lives and futures.
- There are some real actionable steps that they are calling on SFU to take as well as for our collective community to take alongside us to reduce harm to community members mainly students of colour. Some of the things that they are calling on includes - SFU for an investment in student run and student empowering transformative justice practices and community safety, they are also calling for full transparency around the current cost of security at SFU both in-house and through contracted firms, they are also calling for no police, military border patrol, or corrections recruitment such as what they saw when the RCMP was recruiting for them candidates during the solidarity actions when their people were literally attacking indigenous people in their lands, they are also calling for students being stopped by security on campus, they are calling for the stoppage of carting practices, and allowing for students to expunge their names from security records when there has been no crimes and this is because there is actually an instrumental practice that when people are stopped by security, there is a permanent record that is created from that encounter, even if, like nothing bad has happened at all, they are also calling for transparency around whether SFU investments support arms, manufacturers, and any research funding attached to war arms and weapons, and to divest if there is any investment in in such industry and they are also calling for the tracking and accountability of security personnel who frequently escalate calls to the RCMP Or have harassment records within the campus community.

6.3 VP External and Community Affairs 2022-2023 Annual Plan

PRESENTED BY: VP External and Community Affairs “Eshana Baran”

ATTACHMENTS: 202223 VP External Annual Plan (1) (1).pdf

- VP External and Community Affairs mentioned that in summer 2022, they plan to prioritize relationship building as a VP External they are going to communicate with a lot of external organizations, politicians, and Burnaby councillors to best assist the student body. In addition to this, they have also been working on 2023 Budget Consultation, and prioritize on ECA committee engagement and collaboration.
- In June, they plan to recognize the Indigenous Peoples’ Day, ECA at-large application to make sure they are ready with their agenda and working on time or days for folks when we are done with the election, in addition to these they plan to attend the labour note conference in Chicago.
- In July, they would like to get started with the municipal elections – raising awareness about the election so people are aware about its happening is one of their goals, they also plan to work on water drive and donation drive since last year there was a heat wave so they plan to work for people especially the homeless population by our campuses have places to go where we have cooling centres, they also plan to work on community fridge back in the SUB, they also want to make sure that the Burnaby Mountain Gondola project is taking steps forward and they are obtaining funding for it.
- In August, they want to continue with Municipal elections, they also would like to work on recognizing the orange shirt day, and at the end they would like to prepare for the SFSS Annual General Meeting.
- In September, they plan to work and reflect on the national day for truth and reconciliation to amplify and support indigenous community, they also would like to continue to work on the municipal elections and SFSS AGM.

- In October, they would like to work on SFSS AGM.
- In November, they would like to work on fall lobbying – seeing if the community also want to do lobbying, finding the issues that the student body also want to lobby for. In addition to this, once the election is done, they plan to do a round of introduction with the elected people.
- In December, they plan to work on Issues Policies in regard to harm reduction specifically.
- In January 2023, they plan to start defunding the police campaign to educate themselves and work with groups to amplify this concern. They also plan to do federal lobbying – something they have been planning is to work on tuition affordability, affordability housing.
- In February, they would like to have council pass issues policies that they would like and plan to bring forward. And, they would like to organize with the TSSU’s the Tuition Freeze Campaign.
- In March, they would like to continue the work with Tuition Freeze Campaign, they also would like to be a part of spring lobbying, and work on Anti-TMX day of action by collaborating with indigenous people on this campaign.
- In April, they would like to have Tuition Freeze Campaign day of action to exhibit the power of SFU community.

6.4 Save SFU Democracy

PRESENTED BY: Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance “Vivian Ly”

ATTACHMENTS:

- Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance mentioned that SFU’s Board of Governors is the main governing body that approves universities policies. It is made up of 15 elected SFU faculty and students, provincial appointees, and SFU admins. But, certain policies have already started to become under the jurisdiction of the one, non-appointed SFU staff member – the University Secretary and General Counsel. It used to be separate roles but now is concentrated into one. They expressed that this is a huge conflict of interest.

- In terms of the current happenings, there is currently a proposal to change the policy on University Policies and Procedures (B 10.00) to allow the General Counsel / University Secretary to change university policies on their own. If this proposal is to pass, the general council or the university secretary would be able to – firstly, amend associated procedures within university policies without board approval and secondly, it would give general counsel and university secretary discretion to approve amendments to definitions.
- They expressed that if this is not addressed sooner, it could be an attack on SFU'S democracy. It could lead to giving unsupervised power to one individual at the university to make changes to the documents that guide SFU which will be a direct attack on the democratic structure that keeps SFU running.
In addition to this, SFU community members who run for the Board of Governors in hopes of making an impact on university issues will have no control over the changes made by the University Secretary and General Counsel.
- They mentioned that the definitions and policy procedures matter should be taken into consideration as the definitions are the foundational building block of policy. Just last term, the BOG was considering a change to the definition “disruption” in the Student Conduct Policy which would ban peaceful protest on campus – which the SFU community members successfully fought against.
This new proposal will just allow one person to quietly change any definitions and procedures without any consultation with the SFU community or democratic BOG approval.
- This proposal has a far-reaching impact and it can affect the following policies- GP 18: Human Rights Policy, GP 29: Search Committees for Vice Presidents, GP 40: Disability Accommodation in the Workplace, GP 41: Protected Disclosure of Wrongdoings, GP 44: Sexual Violence and Misconduct Prevention, Education and Support, GP 45: Trade Control Policy, I 10.04: Access to information, I 10.11: Protection of Privacy, and basically any policy that the BOG oversees including the B 10.00 itself.
- To address it, due to public pressure, SFU has extended the deadline for faculty and staff to give feedback, they have promised to consult with the students, faculty, and employee groups, and also they have mentioned that the draft policy after consultation will go to SFU Executive Team (a committee of the Senate) and the Board of governors.

- However, they still have not consulted with the students as they promised.
- In terms of the next steps, the Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance councillor would like to mobilize students, staff, and faculty to speak out. They would like to urge folks to sign onto the open letter which will be coming out soon, they would like to urge and pressurize SFU to fulfill their promise to consult, they would like to be taking an official stance as the SFSS Council against the proposal, and also they would be talking to the board of governor representatives and senators about the process and to share the concerns.
- Mathematics Councillor mentioned that they agree with the argument that 5.2.1 within the amend policy no longer applies to the definition and their authority would allow them to unilaterally approve him amendments to definitions. But it seems that that power would still be limited under 5.2.1, and the associated limitations of editorial amendments defined within 2.2 and Appendix A.

In response to them, the Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance councillor mentioned that one of the biggest problems is that this is inherently a contradictory amendment to the policy that there is a huge concern right now with, especially from what we see in the past with the student conduct policy and how it attempts to try to change definitions, to limit students voice in advocacy. They could argue that such definitional changes would still be under their power that could be exploited.

8.10 SFU Democracy Campaign Endorsement – MOTION COUNCIL 2022-05-25-13

SUBMITTED BY: Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance “Vivian Ly”

Ethan / Ben

Whereas currently the SFU Board of Governors is considering a proposal to amend Policy on University Policies and Procedures (B 10.00);

Whereas this proposal would give unprecedented power to one individual to amend the SFU policy definitions and procedures;

Whereas public outcry against the proposal has led to an extended feedback deadline for faculty and staff members;

Whereas the wider student body has yet to be consulted on the proposal as promised by SFU;

Whereas the SFSS Executive Committee has sent the SFSS members mailing list an email sharing Save SFU Democracy campaign resources and encouraging students to give input on the proposal;

Let it be resolved that the SFSS Council endorse and amplify the Save SFU Democracy campaign;

Let it be further resolved that the SFSS Executive Committee and the University and Academic Affairs Committee be tasked to continue to advocate for consultation with the student body and work with student senators and governors to oppose the proposal

POSTPONED

8.11 Move to postpone 10.10 to next Council Meeting to be held on June 8th –
MOTION COUNCIL 2022-05-25-14

SUBMITTED BY: Mathematics Councillor “Ben Tischler”

Ben / Nicole

CARRIED UNANIMOUSLY

- Mathematics Councillor encouraged council to vote in favor of postponing this motion to ensure that the councillors can do their due diligence on the matter.
- Mathematics Councillor expressed that it is important to give enough time to council to consider this motion and the information that we have been presented regarding it especially as the presentation does within it encourages us to reach out to the DSU’s, having lack of time just within the council meeting, if they could have two weeks to do it before the next council meeting it would be a good idea to rather postpone it.
- VP University and Academic Affairs spoke in favor of this and expressed that it would be a good idea for the SFSS to support since this is tasking the Academic Affairs committee to do the bulk of the work, they are not comfortable with the motion being passed today because they have been away from their office and have been working at a reduced capacity due to personal health reasons. They expressed that it would be good to postpone the motion to give additional time to council to review everything as giving more time will make people more passionate about the project itself.
- Faculty of Communication, Art, and Technology councillor mentioned that it is very important for the committee to consult regarding this and there might be some legal consideration that cannot take place ex-camera.

- World Languages and Literature spoke in favor of postponing this motion and expressed that they do not feel comfortable making a conversation about this motion just now and would like to have more time to understand and consult with their student union.
- VP Finance and Services spoke in favor of postponing this motion.
- Disability and Neurodiversity Alliance expressed that if more time is needed to consult with constituency group they are in agreement to it and would like to support the postponement of this motion.

9. DISCUSSION ITEMS

9.1 Website Updates

SUBMITTED BY: VP Internal and Organizational Development

BLURB: Updating the executive and non-executive councillors' names on the SFSS Website to avoid confusion for the membership.

- VP Internal and Organizational Development mentioned that they are looking to update the website for non executive councillors. They have recently updated the website for the executive members. If we look on the website for non executives, the names seem to be outdated, also adding pronouns next to name is something that the communication team will be working on updating.

10. NOTICE OF MOTION

10.1 IEC-1: Composition Change

SUBMITTED BY: VP Internal and Organizational Development

ATTACHMENT: Briefing Note_IEC Composition Change.pdf

Whereas the Elections and Referenda Policy governs how the SFSS hold elections for Executive Officers;

Whereas IEC-1 highlights the composition of the commission as being one chief commissioner, and four (4) commissioners;

Whereas the report on the SFSS Executive Officer Elections (2022) by the SFSS Policy, Research, and Community Affairs Coordinator (PRCA) highlights a recommendation to hire more IEC staff – from one (1) chief commissioner to two (2), and commissioners from four (4) to six (6);

Whereas increasing the number of Chief Commissioners currency would be in conflict with bylaw 13(7);

Whereas bylaw 13(7) allows for “no less than four other Commissioners;

Whereas VP Finances and Services has been tasked to allocate the budget for an increase in IEC spending;

Be it resolved to amend IEC-1 standard composition to strike “four (4) Electoral Commissioners” and replace it with “six (6) Electoral Commissioners”;

“Six electoral commissioners shall be appointed for the duration of any society election or referendum.”

Be it further resolve to strike section in “Appendix: Deliverables” that refers to the numerical composition of the IEC, and replace with: “The purpose of this committee is to provide council with a formal recommendation for the appointment of candidates to the position of seven (7) electoral commissioners: one (1) Chief Commissioner, (6) Electoral Commissioners”;
